The Stitch Fix Story

Stitch Fix was founded by Chief Executive Officer, Katrina Lake, in 2011. Katrina recognized that traditional retail was broken, despite the fact that many people wanted to buy clothes online, no one was offering an easy way to discover new brands or navigate the overwhelming number of options available. While attending Harvard Business School, Katrina saw an opportunity to combine data science with human stylists to completely reinvent the retail space and deliver an unparalleled, personalized experience. She shipped the first Fixes out of her apartment in Cambridge, MA. In 2017, Katrina became the youngest female CEO at age 34, to take a company public when she led the company's listing on the NASDAQ under SFIX.

Since then, Stitch Fix has grown to serve 2.7 million clients in the U.S. in just seven short years. Today, Stitch Fix serves Men's (including Big & Tall), Women's (including Maternity, Plus, Petite), and as of July 2018, Kids. Price points range from $25 an item, up to $600. Algorithms are core to Stitch Fix and they are used in every aspect of the business from operations, styling, inventory management, allocation, to client and stylist matching. Stitch Fix works with more than 1,000 brands including Equipment, Frame, Kate Spade, Levi Strauss & Co, Rag & Bone, Theory and Tommy Hilfiger. Additionally, Stitch Fix has eight Exclusive Brands for women and ten Exclusive Brands for men. In addition to apparel, Stitch Fix carries shoes, accessories, underwear, socks and shapewear.
